Progress

The trolley car has come and gone;
The oil lamps, too, have since passed on,
And bustles are not worn upon
Our Main Street.

Now buses pass each merchant's store;
And street lights blaze before each door,
And styles are changing more and more
On Main Street.

And years from now the changes wrought
In business, styles and people's thought,
Will quite surprise the folks who bought
On Main Street.

The Pessimist says, "It can't be done."
The Optimist says, "It can be done."
The Peptomist Does It!

Be cheerful and all the world's your friend.

You cannot be cheerful until you forget yourself; you cannot forget yourself until you remember others.

—When a man is afraid of what his bank, his family and his friends will think of him if he does wrong, he is on the right track.

Little Banking Stories

An old lady walked into the judge's office.
"Are you the judge of the reprobates," she inquired.
"I am the judge of probate," replied his honor, with a smile.
"Well, that's it, I expect," answered the old lady. "You see," she went on confidentially, "my husband died detested and left several little infidels, and I want to be their executioner." — Southern Pacific Magazine.

EASY PICKING

Two Irishmen had just landed in America, and, like many immigrants, America and Money were synonymous to them. While walking down the streets of New York one of them picked up a quarter that lay in the gutter and a little farther on was fortunate enough to see a dollar that lay on the sidewalk. While stooping down to pick it up, his partner, slightly irritated over the delay, called back:
"Mike, don't bother with that scattered stuff; wait till we get to the pile."

Your presence at this bank is as welcome as your business.
