"It’s Not a Home Until It’s Planted"

I have in mind a picture, one that I’ll not name,
We all can be the owner, and make the grounds the frame.
Now let us start to paint it by building on a lot,
And round that mirrored structure let’s now begin to dot.

Some trees for shade in summer, with flowers that quickly grow,
Some shrubs for birds to nest in, so that they all may know
They too, are here considered and why—but to combine
Their gift of cheery nature to make our place sublime.

And if you can afford it, why not complete that dream,
And plant your choicest wild flow’rs beside that brook or stream.
Then don’t forget the winter, to plant them here and there
A group of evergreens, the stormy winds to dare.

Please don’t forget to ponder that row of princely oak,
It too may need attention, don’t treat it as a joke.
Our picture now is painted, and ready for the dawn
We may pull back the curtain, if we complete the lawn.

—By C. J. Donegan

Why not let us assist you? Then you may say,
"My picture is complete on this unveiling day."
